

ABOUT ME

LAURA LYSAGHT

I am a third year here at UCD studying Plant biology.

I have a huge passion for Science, which I broadcast rather frequently, that I hope to share with you all. I am hard-working, extremely extroverted and a huge nerd. You can probably see me running between classes with a million bags and my big white coat. Legend has it you can summon me with potted plants.

WHY VOTE FOR ME?

EXPERIENCE

1. Representative for different fields in secondary school including
 - Environmental rep
 - Class rep
2. Events officer for Sci-fi and Fantasy society here in UCD

MISSION

1. In the position of Science officer, I would try to make science hub a more helpful study space. No more cracking backs as you try to get an assignment written, or study for a difficult exam. After speaking with many students on issues they have encountered in Science hub, this was at the forefront of many people's minds. So one of my main focuses would be to obtain better tables that help students with their copious amounts of work and more cubbies for a comfortable experience.
2. As well as that, I would advocate for more support to students with better breaks during the terms, and stricter policies regarding video recordings of lectures for those who can't make it with illnesses and housing, and also to make sure lecture slides are provided before the lectures which many said was not being done.

MY COMMUNITY

Community is everything. Throughout my years in Science, this sentiment has rung true.

From the friends who stress with you during exam week after you forgot the name of some random protein. That send stupid memes when your group collectively messed up a lab. That wait for you to pack your things so you can make it to Pi cafe before the line, and then wait again when it has snaked around the corner because you took too long.

To the professors and assistants who extend your assignments after another meltdown. That offer support when the pressure is too much. That make you work hard for the dream you want.

My goal is to make next year a fun experience that brings the community together. To provide a helping hand to course representatives and students. To build from what we have.

A society grows great when old men plant trees whose shade they know they shall never sit in.
